

The pinhole camera project is about taking pictures and seeing if they turned out.

I took some pictures and developed them. When they were developed I took them and looked at them. Then I took them and put them on my board in a certain order. My pictures were my data. What I was trying to do is find out how long I should hold the shutter open.

That is what I did for my science fair project. I had lots of fun doing my project.